

Community and Healthcare Provider Consultations – You're invited

The Royal Flying Doctor Service (RFDS), in partnership with Murray PHN, is conducting three community consultation sessions to discover how to strengthen rural healthcare services in the area.

Local residents are encouraged to share their local health system experiences at community consultation sessions scheduled in three locations in September.

Anyone with an interest in improving local rural health services should sign up to attend a session. All community members and service providers such as GPs, nurses, pharmacists, aged care providers, allied health professionals and service managers are welcome.

The focus areas will include services in:

- Ouyen, Sea Lake and surrounding areas
- Robinvale, Manangatang and surrounding areas; and
- outlying communities around Mildura.

“These community consultation sessions are to find out as much as possible about what services the local community need. I encourage all community members to join a session, particularly those people with complex care needs, so we can hear about your experiences,” said Mr Scott Chapman, Chief Executive RFDS Victoria.

“Collaboration and integration are vital for us to improve access to services for local communities. We are very pleased to partner with RFDS in these important consultations,” said Mr Matt Jones Murray PHN CEO.

The sessions will be facilitated by Rebbeck Consulting on behalf of Royal Flying Doctor Service Victoria.

Murray PHN is pleased to be working in partnership with RFDS and encourages you to have your say.

RSVP by Monday 10 September. Please note that numbers are limited.
